

Understanding my Class Timetable:

1

Be informed

The timetable indicates when you will have your contact classes in the modules that you are registered for.

You will see that module codes in the first semester for first-year students usually start with the numbers 11 for example EDCA 111 is a first-semester module for first-year students.

Be on eFundi

Your lecturer will tell you when and where you will have class through eFundi announcements, the times might be different from the timetable provided by the NWU. Modules are grouped together and in some modules you will have more in person contact with your lecturer than in others. Make sure all the modules you are registered for in the first semester appears on your eFundi.

3

Be in your class

When you attend classes make sure you know where the building is by studying the campus map.

For online classes (distance), make sure you know what software application your lecturer will use. Make sure that you are available, connected to a stable internet connection and have enough data when you attend an online class.

4

Be prepared

Your lecturer will upload material on eFundi that you have to study before you attend a class.

While preparing, make notes for yourself including writing down questions on content you do not understand.

Your lecturer will expect active participation from you in the class and most likely will not repeat content already provided on eFundi.

Whenever you are unsure, please reach out for help. Make sure that you know what is expected of you and that you thoroughly study eFundi and all announcements made on eFundi.

5

Be self disciplined

Set up a schedule of when you will spend time on which module and keep to this schedule until the end of the semester.

How to create a schedule

Always attend classes, ask questions, and participate.

Stay up to date, do not wait for another day to catch up. Remember this is your degree, take responsibility and work hard.

I wish you all the best on this journey to become a teacher, may you grow strong and fall in love with gaining new knowledge and skills and may you go out into the wide world and change lives wherever you go!
